DEVIN BROWN

Devin Brown is a real estate professional and city council member focused on the intersection of real estate, community development, and urban planning. He holds a degree in Real Estate & Urban Analysis and City & Regional Planning from The Ohio State University. Devin has experience in both residential and commercial brokerage and has worked closely with developers, investors, and community stakeholders on projects ranging from single-family housing to transformational mixed-use development.

Born and raised in central Ohio, Devin's path to real estate was shaped by a global perspective and a deep interest in how the built environment influences opportunity and quality of life. After traveling internationally and experiencing communities with vastly different living conditions, he developed a passion for housing and urban development as a tool for positive change.

Through both his public service and private sector work, Devin is committed to bridging the gap between real estate development and community impact and promoting thoughtful, sustainable growth while ensuring development strengthens the community and expands opportunity for residents and future generations.
